"I somehow knew relationships were important, but Jack gave me practical steps to start using those relationships to better manage my people."

Joe Jensen
Testing Manager, Wells Fargo

Jack Zoellner provides a whole new way of looking at companies and the way people work together. And, it works like M.A.G.I.C.!

Dynamic and Engaging Speaker

Jack Zoellner provides the perfect balance of humor and entertainment to keep your audience engaged. His thought-provoking real-world examples support the sequential steps of his M.A.G.I.C. Method, which can be applied immediately upon return to work.

Industry Thought Leader

Jack is president and CEO of Leading Edge Consulting, LLC. He has served in all aspects of the company structure from worker-bee to CEO. Over the past 30 years, Jack has managed small businesses with three employees to mid-sized companies with more than 1,000 people over several mid-level managers.

Jack's speaking topics are customized for every engagement, venue and audience size. Two of his most requested topics include:

Managing Millennials and Keeping them Happy... And Employed

Jack's five-step M.A.G.I.C. Method will help you and your managers to realize millennials are people like everyone else. Ease your fear of millennial employees creating internal drama and threatening to leave the company. This bridge of communication works with any adult age group.

Engaging Engineers with Goal Buy-in and Efficiency

Improve your ability to engage with software, IT, mechanical and chemical engineers. Once you apply Jack's method, the chasm that typically exists between engineer and management is removed. Then, any goal is possible!

"What we ALL need is more Jack Z's in this world. We would all be much happier and more productive and would still get the work done--but with a smile on our faces and with a feeling of pride, rather than relief, that the task is complete."
